Discuss IT Topic 6: Where is our country headed?

Discuss IT Topic: Over the last week, our country has had growing concerns on immigration bans, border safety, and executive orders that remind us of issues that have been plaguing our country for years. Now that Trump has been elected President, there has been people threatening to blow up the White House, human right protests, and a plethora of other sensitive subject matters that are very compelling to individual groups of people. Why have these issues come up now as we head into a time in which it seems no one is going to be happy with the outcomes? Will this create a split in this country and place citizens against one another when it comes to their views? In your opinion, what other topics are at the forefront of concern? Explain.

Response: Please make sure all grammar, spelling, indentation, and punctuation is correct.

It is obvious that there will be a lot of people that will not be happy with the outcomes regarding immigration. The reason for this is because there is really no middle ground, and you are either in favor or you are against the president. Depending on where you stand and where your political view is on this, it tends to be a sensitive subject. And because the president speaks his mind and is completely against one group of people, it touches a nerve. Sometimes it is important where you stand because sometimes you may either agree or disagree what the president says. I definitely believe that the country will be split, and citizens will be against one another because their views are so different and total opposites. There are many other topics that are of concern especially when we start talking about religion and economic class, and our country will definitely be a delicate place as we head towards the future.
